today but I believe he told the Clerk, also, that he did not object to me handling it because it is an amendment he wants on the bill. This is the pawnbrokers bill and it requires the color photograph. Senator Burrows was concerned about junk dealers being required to be subjected to this provision. Senator Stull was worried about used furniture dealers so the amendment that Senator Stull had drafted would take the junk dealers and the used furniture dealers out of the color photograph requirement. That is Senator Stull's amendment and I move its adoption.

PRESIDENT: Senator Goodrich.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Mr. President, members of the body, I just want to point out one thing and that is that only 3% of the merchandise that is stolen and fenced comes through pawnbrokers. A large percentage of it does come through used furniture dealers and junk yards, and as long as you know that, you can do whatever you want to with the amendment but be sure that you know, for example, that only 3%, for example, goes through pawnbrokers. The rest of the fencing is done either privately through unscrupulous individuals or through second-hand dealers and junk dealers. Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Senator Dickinson.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Mr. President, would Senator Goodrich yield to a question, please.

PRESIDENT: Senator Dickinson wants to ask Senator Goodrich a question, is that correct?

SENATOR DICKINSON: Please.

SENATOR GOODRICH: Yes.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Senator Goodrich, did I understand you correctly, you said only 3% of stolen goods is sold or traded or whatever through the licensed pawnbroker?

SENATOR GOODRICH: Is traced.

SENATOR DICKINSON: Traced to.

SENATOR GOODRICH: In other words, as having been handled through pawnbrokers. 3% of the stolen merchandise that is recovered is traceable to pawnbroker operations.

SENATOR DICKINSON: What percent is traceable to a junk yard or a used furniture dealer?

SENATOR GOODRICH: Frankly, there is no...even though they are in the statutes now, they don't have the daily reporting, for example, that the pawnbrokers do and, consequently, the junk dealers and the used furniture houses, the only time they get checked by the police is if they call we are suspicious of this particular set of merchandise or something.
